Patrick Egan bears down heavy on the English press for charging the Irish people with instigating the Chicago socialist riots, when in fact there was not one among the anarchists.

Of the 220 shop men who applied for their old positions in the Missouri & Pacific shops after the strike was declared off, only 60 were taken back.

Mercantile and manufacturing enterprises were never more flourishing, and it is safe to say that whatever may be the drawbacks which other sections are suffering from, Minnesota and Dakota are making grand strides forward.

The coroner's jury investigating the fall of the Brackett building at Minneapolis, has rendered a verdict finding building Inspector Walter S. Pardee, Architect G. W. Draff and Chas. S. Putnam, the carpenter in charge of the work, guilty of gross neglect.

The disgraceful and bloody riots which have lately occurred in Chicago and Milwaukee are not chargeable to the labor organizations, but are the result of the teachings of a gang of socialists who have no regard for the law and order, or the rights of others.

The Pall Mall Gazette commenting on anarchists' riots at Chicago and Milwaukee, says that Europe having adopted a system of exporting papers to the United States is primarily answerable for the troubles and secondly, that America has shown fatal kindness in receiving these papers.

J. V. Brower has sued his brother, W. C. Brower for an interest in the Sank Center Tribune, of which the latter claims to be the sole proprietor. The case is in the United States courts and this week a master in chancery will be in Sank Center to hear the witnesses on both sides.

The Pine Knot says that the lumber companies at Cloquet are obliged to run short handed on account of not being able to get men to work, and that men are wanted to work on the grade between that place and N. P. Junction. If a few of the tramps that are begging around Brainerd for something to eat would strike that locality it would be a good thing.

The Northern Pacific road will institute the weather signal service along its line of road. Brainerd will probably be favored with a station. The signals will be of great service to farmers along the line, as they will not only tell them what the weather was at the point next to them, but also what the indications are for the twelve or twenty-four hours succeeding.

Powderly on Strikes.

The absence of discontent among the miners of the anthracite coal regions, especially among those of the Lackawanna valley, is in part due to the influence of General Master Workman Powderly, whose opposition to strikes is generally known. In a recent conversation Mr. Powderly said:

"We know here to our sorrow what strikes are, and we want no more of them. I think it will be a long time before we have another great strike here. At any rate I hope so."

The terrible strikes that we have had in the coal regions during the last twenty years, never resulted in any good to the workmen. They all realize that fact now. They couldn't see it at the time, but experience has convinced them that nothing has ever been gained by strikes. As a general thing, the end of a strike found the workmen in a far more pitiable condition than they were when they began the struggle. I can look back now and see where hundreds of strikes have been prevented by reason and common sense, and I can look forward to a time when nearly all disagreements between buyers and sellers of labor will be mutually settled by arbitration. I think it will come to this sooner or later. If the power to order a strike is placed in the hands of the general executive board—if each local assembly is compelled to get permission from the general executive committee before it can order a strike, less hasty action and fewer strikes will be the result."

"Will any action be taken on this question, at this time, at the General Assembly in Cleveland next month."

"The meeting will consider the labor troubles throughout the country, and will endeavor to decide upon some system of arbitrating disagreements between employers and employees. The subject of vesting the power to order strikes in the General Executive Board may not come up until the annual meeting in October."

Mr. Powderly still asserts that the country is not yet prepared for the eight hour movement. He says the last time he has heard of it, and he has heard it often, and he has heard it intelligently discussed, and that in consequence, it is not properly understood. He is heartily in favor of reducing the hours of labor, but he fears that too hasty action will render the attempt unsuccessful, and he has all along been in favor of going slow and not forcing the question, hoping that it would be better understood before any general movement was made to lessen the hours of labor.

In the mining regions a refusal by the companies to concede the demand for an eight hour day will not result in strikes. At a meeting with miners in Wilkes Barre, a few days ago, in favor of the eight hour movement, it was decided that, if the operators are disposed to doubt the wisdom of the movement, the demand will be withdrawn until further efforts can be made to prepare the public mind. No serious difficulties will occur in the anthracite region on account of the eight-hour agitation.

Has Rendered Valuable Services.

The St. Vincent New Era says:

"We have noticed, as a candidate for the head of the Republican ticket in the coming election, a Gilman, who is assailed as usual by enemies and opponents, whose wisdom does not increase by the experience of the past. Mr. Gilman is not above criticism, but Minnesota has not, as we recollect, in the past chosen saints or preachers for her Governors. The man of ordinary mould and possessed of the frailties common to humanity. It is absurd for low politicians to assume to preach for effect what they do not practice. It should count for something that where Mr. Gilman has resided for thirty years he rates with the best of the matter of good character. That which the public has to deal, in his record during a very long service as a legislator and a presiding officer, that is a motto, of legitimate discussion. Those who choose to resort to vilification will have their labor for their pains, and as Mr. Gilman has rendered valuable service both legislatively and politically for the people of the Northwest they propose to see fair play in the skirmish regardless of what denunciations or opprobria may say. Of all the Republicans yet named for Governor Mr. Gilman has the greatest hold, and claim upon his party of any man in the northwest."

The Rise and Fall of Roller Skating.

The great empty barn like structure—the skating rink—which a year ago was alive with thousands of happy skaters, is now a deserted place. Here and there in the city can be found one that is making an effort to keep open, but attendance is very poor, and the attractions that then would have brought out thousands are bringing but few to the rinks this season. The "craze" is over. It was a profitable one for the manufacturers of roller skates, and the owners of rinks. Last year, Frank Hall, the proprietor of the Olympic rink, in Philadelphia and who owned a factory for making roller skates, sold 100,000 pairs of skates. This year he has sold only 10,000. The craze is over, Mr. Hall says that though the "craze" is over, it is a mistake to think that roller skating is an amusement is to die out. When the "craze" has entirely subsided roller skating will be reduced to the limits of a pastime upon which legitimate business ventures may be made. Nothing connected with the "craze" is more curious than the manner in which it effected the trade in boxwood maple and hemlock. The boxwood was found to be the best material from which to manufacture the rollers. In consequence last year the wood jumped up from $20 a ton to $40, and one firm by a fortunate purchase just before the market took an upward turn, made $17,000 in less than two weeks. The market was stripped almost bare of boxwood for a time, and thousands and thousands of tons were made up into rollers in a few months. Boxwood is selling at $18 a ton, and the price is going down. So enormous did the proportions of that infatuation for roller skating become that companies with hundreds of thousands of dollars as capital were formed for the purpose of constructing rinks in small cities all over the country. These rinks were built for the most part of hemlock, and so extensive were the operations that this lumber, notwithstanding the immense supply, made advances until the market at one time showed that its value had been increased 25 per cent, by the large operations of the construction companies. Since last year the price of hemlock has fallen off 30 per cent, because the building of the rinks had to be stopped. One of these construction companies in ten months, divided profits of $400,000. The plan of the managers was to build a rink in a promising locality, run it a few weeks, and then, sell out to local speculators. Maple was found to be the best wood with which to construct the rink floors, and this lumber jumped up to $50 and $55 per thousand feet. It is an interesting fact that the "roller skating craze" would have come long ago but for the patent for roller skates after the skate was patented not a skate was sold, and yet the patentee in that time made $3,000,000. Eben Plimpton was the lucky fellow who first conceived the idea of the roller, and he made all the roller skates used during the years his patent ran, and he sold them at a high price to the managers. He always made the contracts read that he should receive 10 per cent, of the admission receipts and all the money from the rental of the skates. Of course roller skating did not flourish under these circumstances, but the amusement was popular enough to keep up small rinks in large cities and Mr. Plimpton made money. As soon as the patent expired and skates could be made by anyone the "craze" started in Richmond, Ind. M. C. Henly started the manufacture of roller skates in a woodshed in that city.

Monday night the city council of Albert Lee fixed saloon licenses at $450 and Tuesday morning every saloon was closed, the proprietors refusing to take out a license at that price. The Mayor vetoed the resolution, and called a special meeting of the council, but when the time arrived but one member, the president, was present.

FOOD FRAUDS.

THE SHREVEPORT LIME AND ALUM IN CHEAP BAKING POWDERS.

Many food frauds, such as chicory, coffee or watered milk, although they are a swindle in a commercial sense, are often tolerated because they do not particularly affect the health of the consumer, but when an article like baking powder, that enters largely into the food of every family, and is relied upon for the healthful preparation of almost every meal, is so made as to carry highly injurious, if not rankly poisonous, elements into the bread to the detriment of the entire community, it is the duty of the press to denounce the practice in the most emphatic terms.

Among recent important discoveries by the food analysis is that by Prof. Mott, the U. S. government Chemist, of large amounts of lime and alum in the cheap baking powder of one of the most famous brands, and the other the most useless, adulterated yet found in Oliver Hobbs was killed in a log jam ten miles above Eagle Lake on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Hobbs was employed by Nelson and Tenny and the crew were employed in breaking up a jam, and in some way this man got in between the logs and was crushed when the logs started, the flesh on his right leg being nearly all torn off. He lived three minutes of the time of his death. The remains were brought to Lacey & Deane's undertaking rooms on Monday where they were prepared for burial and shipped to Anoka on the night train. The deceased was a single man, about 35 years of age and was well known in this city having made it his home for some years.

Speaking of his death an Anoka paper says: "The remains of Oliver O. Hobbs who was killed Sunday on Dege's log jam above Eagle Lake, were brought to Anoka Tuesday and interred in Oakwood cemetery. He was thirty-two years of age, unmarried, and had lived in Minneapolis ten years. He was a nephew of G. D. Coleman, of this city, and has three brothers living in Minnesota, and his father and two of his brothers reside in Maine. Three years ago a younger brother was drowned in the Mississippi, a few miles above Anoka, while bathing.
